The Metro Vancouver housing market slowed down in June. Detached home prices dropped by an average of $11,355. While this was a smaller drop than May's average decline of $12,351, 67% of detached home markets are still seeing prices fall. Condo prices also declined, dropping by an average of $4,457. About half of all condo markets continue to trend downward. Townhomes prices fell by an average of $4,492, with 56% of townhome markets also seeing declines. The forecast for June is that detached homes and condos may continue to face downward pressure, while townhome prices could remain more stable. We all wait for the effect of the $2.5 billion bailout for unsold new condos in the Vancouver area. It's more important than ever to know what's happening in your local area. Analytical Methods: The Vancouver Downtown represents many diverse markets that makes the average or median monthly homes sales statistics have very little value towards understanding the market changes. Currently we have split the Vancouver Downtown market into two parts with the Vancouver Downtown HPIp Top 50% representing the higher end sales and the Vancouver Downtown HPIp Lower 50% representing the lower priced homes sales. Each HPI is determined by adjusting all of the paired monthly sales to produce one the most accurate HPI indexes at this time. Note: For a more accurate price change for your home request a Comparative Market Analysis. Data is from: FVRES, RESGV, CADRES Real Estate Boards and they assume no responsibility for its accuracy.
